Joining the Canadian Celiac Association British Columbia (CCA BC) is the best way you can improve your quality of life as you navigate celiac disease or gluten sensitivity. And having a strong membership gives us a louder voice on matters of importance for those affected by celiac disease.

For an annual individual membership fee of $20, you can learn to manage your health with medically-evidenced information and the latest research. You will receive newsletters, email updates and other exclusive member benefits provided by our corporate partners throughout the year. Members must be at least 19 years of age. A parent may become a member on behalf of a child, but the membership needs to be under the adult's name.
